

TRANSITION PLYMOUTH presents:

RADICAL LAND REFORM: who owns this Earth?

A PUBLIC DISCUSSION

How does rising inequality drive climate change? Why are we getting poorer every year and how is that related to private ownership of land? Is it moral for a human being to charge a fellow human being money to simply live on this earth?

Who does the land REALLY belong to?

Is it time and do we have the courage to challenge the private ownership of land?

Are there any alternatives for sharing this bountiful earth?

Come and share together ideas, proposals, questions about this important topic, towards the land conference on March 21st.

THURSDAY 15th JANUARY

6.30pm for a 7pm start

Room 210, Roland Levinsky building, Plymouth University

Wheelchair access

On the third Thursday of every month
Transition Plymouth invites you to join
